

Department of Communication Studies, Law and Political Science
Internships in Political Science
2019 - 2023

Undergraduate Political Science majors are required to fulfill one credit hour of internship credit in order to meet graduation requirements. Completing an internship can not only provide invaluable experiential learning, it can also make you more attractive to potential employers in the highly competitive global job market. The following is a listing of locations from the past 4 years that Political Science on-campus and online students have interned. Internships can be paid or unpaid depending on the agency, organization or employer. Visit with your mentor, professional academic adviser or the program internship supervisor for more information.
