

MUSIC EDUCATION

WHAT IS MUSIC EDUCATION?

Music education prepares students to be music educators for today and tomorrow. Students learn to apply musical content and pedagogical practices. Areas of study include performance, music theory, pedagogy, and composition, music history, arranging, improvising, conducting and learning theory. Students learn how to teach and meet the needs of diverse learners. They incorporate technology and come to understand how history and culture shape in influence music and music education. They learn to be advocates for music and music education, and to communicate clearly.
