FORT HAYS STATE'S FOURTH ANNUAL FUTURE EDUCATORS DAY

10/31/22

Fort Hays State University's Admissions Office and the Department of Teacher Education recently hosted the fourth annual Future Educators Day. This event brings together area high school students interested in the teaching profession and the best teachers in Kansas. It aims to inspire the next generation of teachers through personal interactions, discussions, and examples of dynamic teaching.

FHSU SENIOR ANNOUNCED AS POSTER COMPETITION AWARD RECIPIENT

11/02/22

Megan Shepard, Fort Hays State University senior, will be awarded a certificate and scholarship for her research-based poster in November. Shepard's poster, titled "Formal and Informal Social Support Matter: Addressing the Needs of Rural Survivors of IPV (Intimate Partner Violence)" was announced as the award recipient of the Division of Women & Crime Undergraduate Student Paper and Poster Competition in October.

GRANT AWARDS

10/10/22

Congratulations to the following for their recent grant awards:

Matthew Clay, URE Award: Distance Exploration of Alpine Ecosystems in K-12 Classrooms. This is unique as it engages a KAMS student and two elementary education majors who are part of FHSU Online.

Janet Stramel, NASA in Kansas Space Grant Consortium, Wind Energy in the Land of OZ, to support a teacher workshop and follow-up work.

Paul Adams, NASA in Kansas Space Grant Consortium, two grants: Robotics for Middle School Teachers and High-Altitude Balloons to Promote Student Research Engagement with NASA to support teacher workshops and follow-up work.

AN EXPLORATORY AND DESCRIPTIVE STUDY OF DESTRUCTIVE LEADERSHIP IN U.S. HIGHER EDUCATION

07/23/22

Kaley Klaus, assistant professor of leadership studies, published an article in the International Journal of Leadership in Education. Co-authored by Stephanie L. Steel, who has held faculty positions in higher education for twelve years, the article seeks to answer the question, "how common is destructive leadership in U.S. higher education?"

MUSIC, PRAYER, AND "SOMETHING UNDERSTOOD": JEAN MOLINET AND GEORGE HERBERT ON THE INEFFABLE

09/30/22

Camilo Peralta, instructor of English, recently published an article in Explorations in Renaissance Culture. The paper examines the approaches used by Jean Molinet and George Herbert to address the ineffable nature of God. In their efforts to describe that which is difficult, if not impossible, to capture in words, both turned to the long tradition of Christian mysticism, and in particular the works of Pseudo-Dionysius and Boethius.
